

Honeymoon in Puerto Vallarta

The view from our penthouse to the North.
And on the next slide to the South you can see
Los Arcos

A Bathroom With A View

We had lots of pelicans flying by the penthouse and a fair number of frigate birds as well. Also we had one species of small bird that kept dive bombing our roof pool.

The City Tour starts in Nuevo Vallarta goes through Puerto Vallarta then down to Mismaloya and finally Chino's Paradise

Our tour guide Mario tells about this statue in the plaza. Can you spot Melissa?

Can you spot the flying Jesus?

RAMAR
CP. 48300

WESTERN DINERO
UNION EN MINUTOS

La manera más rápida de recibir dinero:

Estimulo

ESBC

Contrary to popular belief this is not Juan Valdez.

The ruins of the set of the film The Night of the Iguana

Chris relaxing with an Iguana. Was told it was the “in” thing to do in Mismaloya. Where’s Melissa? It’s her turn.

Antonio tells us how tequila is made in his little distillery from the blue agave.

Chino's Paradise

After a wonderful tour
we finished it with a nice lunch y
una cerveza fria

After our interesting timeshare presentation we ventured into old Puerto Vallarta to see the charm that has people coming back year after year. Not to mention the fabulous restaurants and shopping areas

Chris finds the statue of John Huston and the tacky statue of Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, the Brangelina of their day. Can you spot the Iguana?

A walk through the quaint stalls of Isla Cuale in the Rio Cuale

I thought Night of the Iguana was the title of a sci fi horror flick. You know like Predator which was also filmed in Puerto Vallarta.

Clearly the town likes bad horror sci fi films. They have giant frogs on buildings and they paint planet decorations on their busses.

Two men enter.
One man leave?

Below: Mexican Navy

Right: Mexican Mime

We are off to Las Caletas on a catamaran for The Rhythm of the Night, show and romantic dinner.

Our host Emilio keeps us informed and entertained and he keeps the liquor and fun flowing until we reach Las Caletas

Melissa relaxing

Chris willing himself to not get seasick.

This boat is leaving with tourists who had dinner before the "Aztec" dance show. This was the view from our dinner table until we heard scurrying noises and decided to move to a table located further away from the wall.

The Sun begins sets on the end of a wonderful honeymoon.

The End

Or so we thought. After our plane took off from Puerto Vallarta and were about fifteen minutes out and still climbing, we heard a loud bang and the plane shuddered briefly. A minute later the pilot announced that we'd lost an engine and would be returning to our origin to a normal landing. Fifteen air-minutes and three hours later we were in a nice hotel.

Bienvenidos a Velas Vallarta

Puerto Vallarta at Night

Cool pool with a romantic channel

OK. Now the Sun finishes setting on an otherwise great honeymoon

going

going

gone

